City of Warren Declares November 29, 2025, as Small Business Saturday

Warren, MI (Nov. 26, 2025) – Mayor Lori M. Stone has officially proclaimed Saturday, November 29, 2025, as Small Business Saturday in the City of Warren, encouraging residents and visitors to shop local and support Warren’s small businesses.

Small Business Saturday, held each year after Thanksgiving, highlights the vital contributions small businesses make to local economies. In Warren, small businesses strengthen neighborhoods, support local families, and help maintain the character and vibrancy of our community.

“Small businesses are the backbone of our community,” said Mayor Lori M. Stone. “Warren’s local business owners work hard every day to provide high-quality goods, services, and experiences that make our city stronger. When we choose to shop locally, we’re investing directly in our neighborhoods, our families, and Warren’s future.”

The City of Warren encourages everyone to explore and support the many small businesses that call Warren home—whether you’re starting your holiday shopping or checking off the last items on your list. Choosing to shop close to home keeps dollars in the community, strengthens our business owners, and helps build a more vibrant and resilient Warren all year long.
